MAGIMIX CATALOGUE

The Magimix Story

It all started in 1961 when Pierre Verdun, a butcher from Montceau-les-Mines, a small village located in the heart of Burgundy, a region noted for its gastronomy, and Robert Comte created the first food preparation machine with a blade on the bottom of the pot.

Robot-Coupe's original idea was to create a single machine that could perform a variety of routine tasks for professional chefs (such as chopping, grinding, kneading, shredding...). He patented the invention and hence created the first multi function food processor in the world. The brand developed quickly and expanded internationally.

A bit envious, his wife asked him if he could make a smaller version of the product for her domestic use. The first compact domestic food processor was created on the 1st March 1971 under the brand name Magimix.

In 1980, the French Groupe Hameur took over the two brands and is still the sole owner of the company today with over 150 employees and an international brand presence thanks to its network of subsidiaries around the world.

Paul Bocuse was the ambassador for the brand and continued to use it at home all his professional life as do so many renowned chefs around the world.

Today, the majority of the products are still made in France, in the factory of Montceau-les-Mines, in the heart of the Burgundy region. The majority of the accessories (blades, discs, etc) are all made in Sabatier stainless steel and made in Thiers.

Magimix has always boasted an industrial-grade, direct-drive induction motor, the type that automatically adjusts its power to the task at hand. The motor is guaranteed for 30 years. It is no surprise that the slogan for Magimix is 'built better to last longer.'

A succession of other inventions occurred. In 1984, the first egg whisk is invented for the food processor. In 1988, the first multi-bowl food processor is invented, allowing several tasks to be carried out in succession. Magimix creates the three different bowl sizes that enable you to prepare multiple food preparations without having to clean them each time.

This enabled a huge timesaving that made the brand even more popular. The company launches three different sized food processors for different family sizes the 3200XL, the 4200XL and the 5200XL.

In 2015, Magimix launches the cooking food processor which enables more cooking functions whilst still providing the benefits of a standard food processor.

Discover the Magimix Juice Expert, make juice, smoothies, plant milk and freshly squeezed citrus juice with ease.

Also great for making savoury treats like passata and vegetable coulis.

For juice-lovers everywhere.

Make juices, smoothies, plant-based milks and freshly squeezed citrus juices with ease. Using cold press technology, the Juice Expert has been shown to retain more vitamins and minerals alongside extracting higher yield with lower oxidation. The Magimix Juice Expert is the ultimate juicer taking up little worktop space whilst being a powerful and versatile machine.

Multifunctional 3 in 1 solution:

- Juice Filter XL: For perfectly pure and clear juices
- Extra Press XL: For deliciously smooth juices, milks and smoothies (Juice Expert 3)
- Citrus Press and pulp system: For freshly squeezed juice with or without the pulp

Higher yield with cold press and more vitamins and minerals retained.

A comparative analysis carried out by ISHA Laboratories in 2016 found that the Juice Expert extracts up to 96% higher yield, up to 95% more antioxidants and 85% more vitamins compared to a high speed juice extractor.
